Pennsylvania Environmental Council Honors ESS Energy Products, Inc.
The Energy Guardian® Kits Receive Governor's Award for Environmental Excellence

The Pennsylvania Environmental Council will host award ceremonies for this year's recipients of the 2008 Governor's Award for Environmental Excellence at a gala dinner on April 22, 2008 in Harrisburg.

The Energy Guardian® Kits were selected for this highly competitive award based on the criteria of public service, environmental education and outreach, new technology and pollution prevention.

"As an advocate for reducing energy consumption and addressing climate change, the PEC is pleased to recognize the work of ESS in developing The Energy Guardian® Kits," comments Brian Hill, president of PEC. He continues, "The Energy Guardian® Kits stand out because they reduce energy use in homes, save money and decrease greenhouse gas emissions."

The attic entrance is commonly the most overlooked energy loss in homes today. This hole in the attic thermal barrier costs the average homeowner $100's annually in wasted heating and cooling costs. It is also the source of uncomfortable drafts in the winter and a reason for many to use space heaters.

"With our kits already in thousands of homes, residents from across the country report significant savings on their utility bills while making their homes more comfortable," states Dennis Melesky, Vice President for ESS Energy Products, Inc. "We have been advised that the 2009 U.S. Building Code will require such a measure, because the energy savings are so important."

The Energy Guardian® Kits made by ESS Energy Products, Inc. of Paoli, PA uniquely insulate and seal any type of attic entrance. ESS was previously awarded for Environmental Efficiency by Kutztown University and is recognized by well known experts in the field of residential energy conservation as a "national standard." The Energy Guardian® Kits were chosen to be part of the Affordable Comfort Institute's National Green Demonstration Home as part of a private sector response to national policy questions on energy this April.
